Things to remember when ordering Channel-Seal for your vacuum chuck:

- Measure correctly---wrong sized Channel-Seal may leak if it is too high or too low. Normally it should be 1/32" above the chuck.
- Channel-Seal stretched too far during installation will produce an insufficient seal between the chuck and work piece causing holding problems.
- Worn, torn, or aged Channel-Seal can produce an insufficient seal as well.
- Sizes other than standards listed on the reverse can be special ordered in large quantities.
- Although most vacuum chucks, including those not sold by Obsidian Manufacturing Industries, Inc., will work well with our Channel-Seal, we cannot guarantee that our Channel-Seal will work with your vacuum chuck if we did not manufacture it or the chuck has been modified from the original design.

We've carefully checked your order and packaged it to make sure it arrives to you safely. We're paid careful attention to the size and quality of the material enclosed. If you've ordered a size that won't work for you, please refer to the chart on the back listing all available sizes. Call us for a consultation on what material would be best for your application.
